

HYPNO BRO

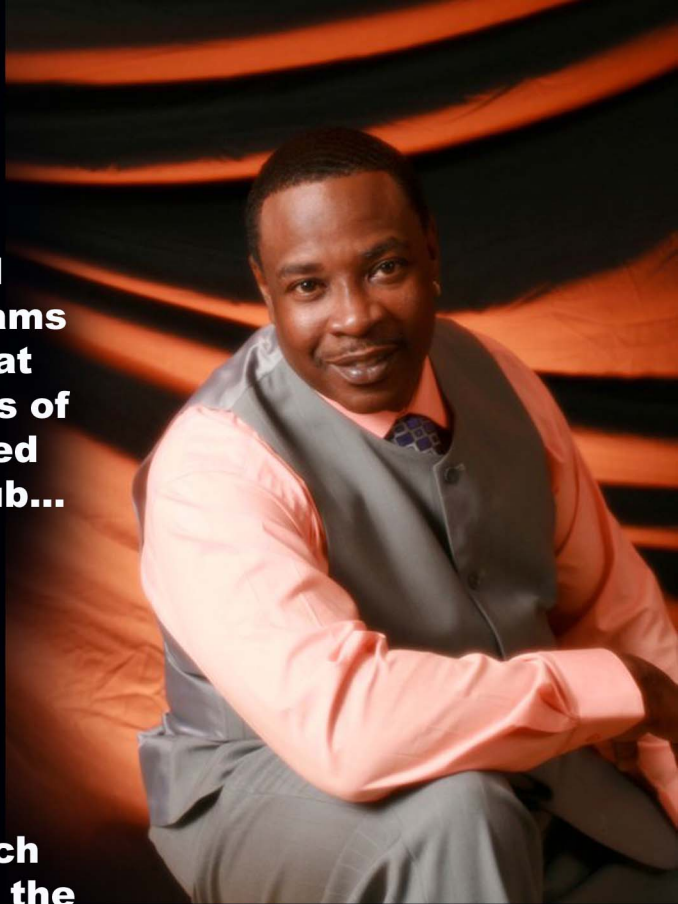

Even with a degree in Architecture, it's hard to believe there was ever a time Leroy Williams considered not being a performer. In place at a nice secure government job with the Corps of Engineers in Norfolk, Virginia, Leroy stumbled into an open mic night at a local comedy club... and took first place.

After winning a gig as the MC, Leroy was hooked. Bitten, but still practical, Leroy did not commit to standup until returning to his home town of Houston, Texas in 1991, the mecca of comedy in the southwest. Leroy became a regular at the Comedy Place, which proved a great training ground. Even though the audience only consisted of 10 to 15 patrons, the show went on. You could be called on to MC or headline with no advance notice. You either worked hard at becoming a better comedian or got left back in the pack of also rans and could have beens.

Leroy paid his dues the old-fashioned way...by working the road. The experience proved invaluable as Leroy climbed through the ranks to headline such notable clubs as Pierce St. Annex in Anchorage, Alaska, The Comedy Showcase Houston, Texas and The Comedy Lift in Omaha, Nebraska..His international performances include Germany, Italy, Japan and Korea. He is recently back from an extended tour of Iraq, Barhain and Dujubai Africa where he entertained american troops to rave reviews.

Having appeared on BET'S Comic View numerous times and performing with such notable acts as Steve Harvey, J Anthony Brown and D.C. Curry. Leroy added hypnosis to his repertoire to the delight of audiences in clubs, colleges and corporate events nationwide.
