

Stefanie L. Brown

Stefanie currently serves as the National Field Director for the NAACP in Baltimore, Maryland. In this position, Stefanie is charged with developing and administering the national field organizing strategy for the NAACP's 2,200 branches, youth councils, high school and college chapters. Prior to this position, Stefanie served as the National Director of the NAACP Youth & College Division representing 23,000 youth around the country. Under her leadership, the Division created the "STOP Campaign" - aimed at addressing negative images of Black youth in the media; the "Campaign to End Campus Racism"; the EMERGE Leadership Development Institute and the "2008 Vote Hard Campaign" - a youth voter empowerment initiative with the NAACP National Voter Fund.

Formerly the National Outreach Coordinator for Global Justice, Inc., Stefanie created the organization's Black Student Justice Network; a national student network to prompt youth engagement in informed advocacy around equity related policy issues pertinent to the Black community. During her tenure, the Black Student Justice Network garnered the participation of over 200 students at 15 colleges and universities around the country in only five months of operation. Stefanie is the President and CEO of SL.Brown Enterprise, a community relations consulting company; the founder of the Harvey & Delores Brown Scholarship Fund; and a member of Delta Sigma Theta Sorority, Incorporated. Stefanie currently serves on the Advisory Board of the Black AIDS Institute's African American HIV University Community Mobilization College and served on the Dillum Commission's Reproductive Health for Young Men of Color National Taskforce. Featured on CNN, MSNBC, and USA Today, Stefanie was recognized as one of Ebony Magazine's 2007 "Top 30 Young Leaders under the Age of 30" and was awarded the 2007 Lamplighter Award for Public Service by the Black Leadership Forum.
